Mother Jones Award

The Washington State Labor Council's Mother Jones Award has long been esteemed as the state labor movement's recognition of its members' dedication to championing dignity and respect for all workers in our state.

This accolade honors those within the state labor movement who embody Mary "Mother" Jones's rallying cry, "Mourn for the dead, but fight like hell for the living!". Mother Jones was a unique organizer who welcomed African American workers and involved women and children in strikes. She organized miners' wives to guard against scabs and staged parades with children advocating for education over mining. The award is bestowed yearly upon one individual and one organization.

The awards were presented during the WSLC Annual awards dinner during the 2024 Convention.

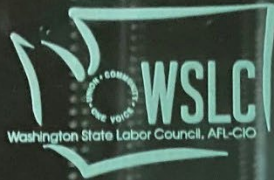

This year's honorees are our esteemed colleagues LE Unit Business Representative Megan Kirby and LU 46 Intern Trina Chapa!

Congratulations on receiving acknowledgment for your commitment and tireless efforts supporting the Limited Energy Electricians of Local 46.
